The Canaries are an effective multi-skilled team and are responsible for the management and planning of activities. The Canaries invite outside entertainers ranging from singing and dancing to musicians and magicians.

Twice daily activities are promoted on the activities boards of House 72 and House 74 morning and afternoon.

The entertainment programme includes a weekly visit from Charlotte accompanied by one of her PAT dogs and a relaxing and refreshing reflexology or pampering session from Alison Pearce. The Canaries also arrange individual visits to Town for coffee, trips out and inclusion in community events. Recent research has shown that exercise plays a positive role in the care of dementia and Springfield offers movement to music sessions every week. The Canary team is available to offer assistance to residents in ensuring their right to vote is maintained and that religious needs are met, as well as conducting individual sessions with clients who may be unable or prefer not to be part of a group activity.

Residents

Services Provided

Springfield provides accommodation and personal care for male and female clients with physical and mental health problems related to the ageing process, or as a result of other illness or disease which would make it impossible for them to live at home. Additional factors could include loneliness or memory impairment.

Springfield offers a safe and secure environment. In consultation with the multi-disciplinary team e.g. GP's, Community Mental Health Team, Community Matron, CPN and other Multi-disciplinary agencies we are able to offer a comprehensive care package to meet individual residents needs.

All of our residents are regularly reassessed, using recognised assessment tools, to provide the dignified care that they deserve. Family and carers are encouraged to provide input, to ensure that all residents' needs are catered for.

We provide a therapeutic environment with daily activities to encourage social interactions of the individual.

Springfield addresses the obligation to maintain a positive atmosphere and takes every step to address health needs, but if following reviews and consultation, a resident's behaviour continues to have a detrimental effect on the well-being of others within the Home, or if it were evidenced that Springfield is unable to fulfill an individual's care needs, a resident may be asked to leave.

On admission to Springfield a registered physiotherapist assesses the mobility of the residents and assists in preparing a moving and handling care plan and physiotherapy program as needed. After a period of 4 weeks a review is conducted and the care plans will be discussed and agreed by the resident or their representative. The care plans will be reviewed a minimum of monthly or subject to any significant change in the residents health or wellbeing.

Criteria Used For Admission to Springfield

Springfield provides care for a maximum of 65 people with physical health needs, including dementia related illness and terminal conditions. Springfield is pleased to offer short-term care for people recovering from illness or an operation, respite care and holiday breaks to enable carers to take a planned break can be booked.

Springfield policy is that all residents are assessed prior to admission to ensure that Springfield can care for them. The initial assessment will determine whether Springfield will be able to fulfill the potential resident's requirements. A letter is sent to confirm the placement or prospective residents or relatives will be advised if it is felt that Springfield would not be an appropriate placement. Springfield undertakes to further explain the implications of any future changes in the resident's needs which it may not be possible to accommodate.

If the potential resident lives more than 25 miles away or if there is a need for an emergency admission then an assessment will be conducted on the telephone with the relevant carer/social worker or Hospital Staff and documentation will be obtained to enable staff to ensure they will be able to cater for the potential resident.

It is expected that, prior to taking up residence, an agreed contract is signed by the resident, or a representative of the resident. This contract will detail the obligations on both sides and should minimise misunderstandings should they arise.

Personal Care

A full range of personal care is provided, from minimal through to the full range, according to the residents needs. Residents are encouraged to maintain their self-care skills, and thus their sense of independence, for as long as possible. Residents may decide how often they wish to bathe and/or shower, and any assistance required will be indicated on their Care Plan. Key Workers will assist the client where necessary in ensuring that they have sufficient supplies of toiletries or other personal belongings which will be solely used for them.

Clothing and Dressing

Residents, or their families, are requested to make sure that there is an adequate supply of clothing available for residents use. The ownership should be clearly identified by means of sewn on labels, this will ensure that clothes do not go missing. Residents are enabled to choose their preferred clothing on a daily basis where possible and when this may not be achievable advice will be sought with regards their preferences when they were able to make that choice. This includes the way a person likes to wear their hair and the application of make-up where appropriate. Staff are trained to promote independence and encourage clients to do as much as they can for themselves. Key workers and our social care team will notify next of kin of any requirements on behalf of residents where a need is indicated.

Elimination Needs and Continence Promotion

The care plan will identify if there are any special provisions required regarding continence and any discussion relating to this area, or requests for assistance etc, will be handled with sympathy and discretion. The individual Care Plan will clearly identify any bladder or bowel problems and the strategies to manage the risk and promote continence.

Skin Integrity and Skin Care

As part of the admission process, skin integrity is assessed using a recognized scoring system. Any treatment required will be clearly indicated in the personalized care plan. Staff received comprehensive training in skin care which is overseen by the Clinical Matron roles in each Unit/House and reduces the risk of skin breakdown, tissue damage and pressure ulcers. Where ulcers are present, the assessment will identify the stage / grading of the ulcer and a specifically designed care plan will be implemented to promote healing and reduce the risk of deterioration and or infection. The Clinical Matron will consult with the qualified Nursing team and other trained staff to manage wound healing problems should they arise. Residents have access to a full range of pressure relieving equipment.

Bedtime and Night Time Care

Residents' wishes relating to bedtime are respected and the care plan will include detail of any assistance required, including personal hygiene needs, hearing aid care, care of dentures and reading glasses etc. Regular checks, as per the care plan, will be made on residents throughout the night, although, where appropriate, residents can request not to be disturbed. The target call system response time is within 5 minutes. Emergency calls are responded to immediately. Residents choose their preferred time of getting up and going to bed. Their care plan will indicate any assistance required, this may include the use of hoists etc. Where a number of residents wish to retire or receive assistance to get up and dressed at the same time, staff on duty will ensure that a fair system to address everyone's' needs and wishes is implemented.

Medication

Medication is administered by trained staff, which is in accordance with the established professional Code of Conduct. All staff administering medication receive annual medication supervision overseen by the Clinical Matron.

Springfield operates a policy in accordance with the NMC Standards for the Administration of Medication and in line with associated legislation. Springfield is registered with a local pharmacist, who visits our premises on a regular basis and also offers advice on a range of queries as and when they arise.

Our residents are involved in the decision making process relating to prescribed medicines, and where possible, the time that the medication is to be administered. This is associated with the residents GP and is of particular importance in the management of pain.

All medication charts are printed by the pharmacist from the doctor's prescription to minimize errors. These charts are further checked by the senior staff on duty when received from the pharmacy. Copies are kept of prescriptions until the item arrives to ensure the item is as prescribed.

End of Life Care

Springfield has a policy regarding the provision of high quality care and understanding for residents, and their families, in the end stage of illness. Springfield is in the process of registering to use The Liverpool Care Pathway and applying for the Gold Standard Framework.
